The signature is comprised of the logomark Columbine Cross followed by the text "The Episcopal Church in Colorado". In the recent logo update, the Columbine visually represents both Colorado and the Church. The gradation adds depth and visual interest.

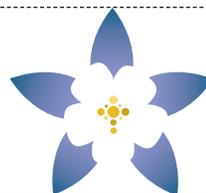

When displaying the signature, these elements should always appear as a single lockup. There are special cases when the flower logo and text may appear separately.

Please get approval from the marketing department in these cases.

PREFERRED FORMAT

The preferred format for The Episcopal Church in Colorado (ECIC) logo signature is the Columbine Cross logomark lock up with the wordmark.

When applying the signature, a reasonable amount of empty space around the signature must always be maintained. This empty space is referred to as the area of isolation, and must be kept clear of all other graphic imagery, page edges, and text.

By using the width of the "R" from the logomark as a guideline, a reasonable amount of empty space is maintained regardless of which size logo is being used.

MINIMUM AREA OF ISOLATION

A space equal or greater than the width of the 'R' from the ECIC logo font in the wordmark is used as a guideline to measure the minimum isolation zone.
