

A Prayer for the 133rd Annual Convention

Most intimate and loving God, as we gather together in images and voices of equidistant, sacred geometry, Your Spirit delights and is pleased to dwell in the places of our separate, yet fully interconnected lives. We pray that in this disconcerting time of isolation we have taken pause and quieted enough to listen—to be nourished in the rich and dark soil of trust and faith. May we respect the truth in each other's sharing as we seek Your creative, hope-filled way forward as Body and Blessing. Keep us in the strength of now, trusting in the power of Your promise to be with us always in Spirit and Truth regardless of worldly circumstance. Amen.
